

toast notifications

Toast notifications are used to promote awareness of a new event to the user and request action from the user in an unobtrusive and friendly manner. Toast notifications should be used sparingly, and are tied to personal events or an unexpected situation. Applications should be conservative in displaying toast notifications to avoid annoying the user.

- Users may interact with the toast notifications by tapping on it, the toast will then launch the notifying application.
- Toast notifications are global, showing up in all applications.
- Toast notifications come in from the top and overlay application content.
- The height of the toast notifications is fixed.
- Applications should design UI to accommodate the height of the toast notifications.
- Toast notifications time-out and disappear completely after a period of time.
